Indulge in Five-Star Dining, Hotels, Fashion and Spas During the Holidays
*Book Ubiquity International Shopping-Spa Tour to Paris & London Dec. 1-8

Piedmont, CA – June 19, 2006 – Sure it is only June, but do you realize the hectic holiday season is only months away and the new spring fashions for 2007 will soon be hitting the stores? Rather than give in to the stress of holidays and get caught behind the style curve, plan to enjoy the season indulging in fashion, spa treatments, fine dining and luxury hotels. Join Thomas Talboy, Cultural Specialist and founder of Ubiquity International, the premier provider of unique cultural, historical and educational travel experiences throughout the world, and fashion experts from Where to Wear, publishers of popular fashion shopping guides for London, Paris, New York and Italy, for a remarkable European adventure. Spend three days in Paris and three days in London, December 1 to 8.

Explore some of the world's greatest fashion boutiques, including Austique, Mimi, Matches, Whistles, Top Shop and Selfridges. As a special treat after shopping in two of the greatest cities in the world, travelers will enjoy five-star accommodations and top-notch pampering at fine spas in Paris and London. Returning home relaxed and rejuvenated, and fully loaded with hot new spring fashions.

“Our tour season is traditionally June through September, so we are delighted to offer this distinctive tour in December during the holiday season,” said Talboy, who through Ubiquity International offers personalized itineraries to Rome, Florence, Paris, Athens, Madrid and Barcelona. “Partnering with the Where to Wear personal shoppers and including spa packages in Paris and London will add a fresh dimension to our already exciting cultural itineraries.”

Starting in Paris, travelers will enjoy the deluxe rooms at the Sofitel Faubourg near the fashionable Rue di Rivoli. They can explore the grandeur of the Palace of Versailles and the works of masters at the Musées du Louvre and d'Orsay. Stroll along the Champs-Élysées or enjoy an afternoon of self-indulgence at the Nuxe Spa. One thing is for certain, three days here will go by quickly.

“Fashion followers know that Paris and London are international style headquarters and home to some of the most distinctive and artistic designers in the world,” said Julie Craik, Where to Wear partner and director of sales and marketing. “We are thrilled to collaborate with Ubiquity International and share these fashion hotspots and experiences with their travelers.”

After Paris, the Ubiquity International tour then heads to London by train via the Chunnel. Once arrived, travelers check into the luxury boutique Knightsbridge Hotel near the fashion conscious Kensington High Street. Men and women are able to treat their fashion senses in the boutique and UK-only shops of savvy High Street and Jermyn Street. The fashionistas from Where to Wear London shopping guide will be on hand to provide fashion expertise during a day of shopping in Covent Garden and Knightsbridge. Travelers may choose to spend a morning shopping, and an afternoon rejuvenating with a spa treatment at the Berkeley Hotel in London. Dinner at the Savoy Grill and an optional evening of theater in the West End are the ideal way to complete a day.

Group size is limited for this first time ever Paris-London extravaganza tour by Ubiquity International. Travel agents are eligible for commission when booking this trip.
